Defections rock Lakas

JDV: Desertions
a protest against merger of Lakas,
Kampi parties

By Yolanda Suarez
Inquirer Northern Editor

DAGUPAN CITY—THE RECENT defections from the ruling party are a gesture of protest by the members of the original Lakas-CMD against its merger with Kampo, Pampanga Rep. and former Speaker Jose de Venecia said yesterday.

De Venecia, former president of the Lakas-CMD, had earlier positioned the Commission on Elections to nullify the merger, but lost the case. But he has not given up hope.

"I am still trying to fight the battle in the Supreme Court," he said.
De Venecia said the defections to the Liberal Party (LP) of Pangasinan officials, including Alaminos Mayor Hernan Bragana, would strengthen the LP and the presidential and vice presidential bids of Senators Benigno "Ninoy" Aquino and Miriam "Ma" Ferrer.

Bragana, a former press secretary of President Macapagal-Arroyo, and other Pangasinan political leaders took their oath as LP members at the party headquarters in Quezon City on Friday. (See home story on this page.)

Among those sworn in as LP members along with Bragana were Rep. Victor Aguilera and former Vice Gov. Oscar Lazatin.

LP, NP big gainers of exodus from ruling party

By Michael Lim-Uac

TWO RIVAL PARTIES ARE RAIDING THE RULING LAKAS-KAMPI-CMD AND ITS traditional bailiwicks, thus changing the political terrain ahead of the May 2010 national elections.

The Liberal Party (LP) seems to be ahead of the Nacionalista Party (NP) in the raiding mission and is now re-assembling the late former President Corason "Gory" Aquino's "yellow army."

Mayor Alfredo Lim of Manila and Hernan Bragana of Alaminos, Pangasinan, members of Gory's perpetually bickering Oremba clan, Gen. Rep. Antonio Canino, and Quezon City Mayor Ismay Belandina's daughter

Joy, who is running for vice mayor, are only a few of those who have ditched political affiliations and are now backing Sen. Benigno "Ninoy" Aquino III, LP standard-bearer and Gory Aquino's only son.

Even Goring Goo, Brisco "Young" Makini, who ran and won as governor under the administration known in 2007, has defected.

Lim was an avid supporter of Gory Aquino. The LP and his own Lakas party in Kapagasan, Ikatagan at Kanluran have agreed to join forces for next year's polls, and a memorandum of understanding is to be signed tomorrow at the Bonifacio Shrine in Manila. (See related story on Page A6.)

The site is memorable: It was where, in 1998, Lim declared his (unsuccessful) presidential candidacy with Gory Aquino endorsing him.

Among those now under the LP fold are senators and shakers in local politics.

Solidarity with Filipinos tops Hillary's 2-day visit

By TJ Burgardo

SOLIDARITY WITH TYPHOON-BATTERED Filipinos tops the agenda of US Secretary of State Hillary Clinton when she travels to the Philippines next week.

"I'll be going to the Philippines to show solidarity with our friends in the Philippines who have been battered by typhoons and have just suffered as much over the last weeks," Clinton said in a speech in Washington on Friday.

Powerful storms swept Metro Manila and the rest of Luzon beginning last September, triggering heavy flooding and landslides that left about 1,100 dead, tens of thousands homeless and destroyed millions of dollars in infrastructure and agriculture.

United States assistance, particularly in rebuilding the typhoon-damaged areas, is high on the agenda of the Clinton visit, according to Malacanan and Department of Foreign Affairs officials who confirmed yesterday that Clinton will be staying for two days in between attending the various meetings of the Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation (APEC) in Singapore.

During her Manila visit, scheduled from Nov. 12 to 15, America's chief diplomat will "hold consultations with senior Filipino officials, highlighting the US-Philippines treaty alliance," Clinton's spokesperson Jan Kelly told reporters in Washington.

Clinton will be arriving on Nov. 12

POLITICAL HERRY GO-ROUND The "Disneyland of the Philippines," "Gloria's Fantasyland," in Barangay Dava, Cagayan City is not named after President Arroyo, but simply means "happiness."

Jalosjos fantasy park named Gloria

By Judy Quinsac
Inquirer Mindanao

DAPITAN CITY—THE P1.2-BILLION theme park rising on a seven-hectare property here bears a familiar name—Gloria's Fantasyland.

The bride behind Mindanao's first world-class theme park, which targets children, is converted child maven and Arroyo ally former Zamboanga del Norte Rep. Romeo Jalosjos.

Jalosjos has asked President Macapagal-Arroyo to grant him an absolute pardon so he could again run for public office 12 years after he was convicted of raping an 11-year-old girl. An absolute pardon would mean Jalosjos' right of suffrage, which is the right to vote and be elected to office.

Malacanan on Friday said it would not be presented to granting Jalosjos an absolute pardon just because he is planning to run for his old post.

It easily assumed that Jalosjos owned the theme park after President Arroyo because the two are reportedly close.

The former lawmaker, however, said that this was not the case.

For locals here, Gloria simply means happiness.

THE WORLD IS NOT GOING to end in 2012.

The reassuring voice dispelling fears of an apocalypse in that year brought a collection of light to the audience at the SWS convention center.

The spiritual head of the US-affiliated The Art of Living Foundation gave this assurance not as a prophet but as a social activist who has taught people of different traditions and faiths the "art of living" through techniques that value the mind and instill self-confidence.

It was a question begging to be asked amidst the anxiety generated by cataclysmic changes in the world, fanned by a viral marketing hype for an upcoming calendar movie called

Speaker vows bills' passage despite break for fight

By Lela B. Solares

WHILE PLANNING TO BE IN LAS Vegas by Nov. 14 to watch Manny Pacquiao's latest fight, Speaker Pro Tempore Juan P. Arroyo said the House of Representatives is set to pass the 2001 budget on that and that meeting when the session resumes this week.

He then said he also expected to pass an amended budget and voting the passage of the 11.54-billion national budget for 2000, which is not only an election year but one where the country expects to rebuild after the disaster brought by last year's natural calamities.

"We cannot afford a recessed budget. We need to be guided by a national recovery budget that is focused, among others, on education, health and human resource development, information technology, infrastructure and investment, employment, education and job protection, and environment protection," he said in a statement.

Congress only has a few sessions weeks left before it adjourns in February and the campaign period starts for the 2001 elections. Many bills, however, are still pending approval.

Blaming a quorum had been a problem in the House, especially in the last few months as many lawmakers were reportedly in their districts working on their reelection plans.

The problem could be compounded by Pacquiao's latest fight with Marvin Manzanillo Miguel. According to reports, about 29 lawmakers would be watching the fight in Las Vegas—possibly.

Napalm himself is expected to be at the match.

Earlier, the Speaker said he had never missed a legislative fight, but on an earlier occasion of the outgoing term as they are both from Marikina.

On top of the House agenda where the budget remains are the passage on that reading of the Magna Carta of the Press and the law on the exchange of information on tax matters.

Also on the list are: a bill to amend the Electric Power Act (Electricity Act), a measure to give compensation to human rights victims, a proposal to enhance the use of English as a medium of instruction, and a bill to strengthen the anti-money laundering law.

The reproductive health bill, which seeks to promote both natural and artificial/inject control methods through government programs, has been the subject of primary deliberations for many months and is still an contentious as some.

The Catholic Church is reportedly opposed to the measure since it believes that contraceptives would induce abortion, an argument denied by the bill's proponents.

The right to reply bill, on the other hand, is being opposed by media groups that see it as an encroachment on freedom.

Make election duty optional, teachers ask

PUBLIC SCHOOL TEACHERS HAVE IT HARD enough, and they now want the option to refuse election duties when they usually face physical and sexual abuse, harassment and violence from bitter candidates, according to a national teachers' group.

With elections only six months away, the 25,000-strong Teachers' League Coalition (TEC) is urging lawmakers to amend the Constitution Election Code to make conducting poll duties voluntary for teachers.

A bill pushing for the amendment was earlier filed in the Senate, but Congress only has a few weeks left to make any changes and other priority bills before adjourning for the election campaign period.

Under the Constitution Election Code, teachers are supposed to head the Board of Election Inspectors, Board of Election Officers and Municipal Board of Canvassers. Their duties are in charge of ensuring the vote and counting that the polls are free, orderly and honest.

Speaking at the Kapitan in Soto Fortin, TEC national chair strips Ramon yesterday said the group wanted to make the teachers' participation in election duties voluntary so that they would have leverage to ask for more security and compensation pay.

Ramon said teachers need more pay because they tend to be at the front line during election, and usually have to work more hours than official staffs.

Protection is also vital because they usually become the targeted being candidates and their supporters. Sometimes, the Canvassers become the teachers for the police, he added.

In 2007, a teacher and a poll watcher were killed when armed men on a motor vehicle shooting went on a voting center.

Ramon believes that even if poll duty were made voluntary, teachers would sign up for it as long as they are guaranteed protection and proper pay.

"If we can begin to have higher compensation, and they can make up their minds, we would be safe and would be protected, we think our teacher would rather be seen in the classroom. I myself would not refuse," he said.

GMA 'mistah' named Metro military chief

A "MISTAH" OF PRESIDENT MACAPAGAL-ARROYO in Philippine Military Academy Class 1978 took the helm of the Armed Forces of the Philippines' National Capital Region Command (NCRCom) yesterday.

Maj. Gen. Reynaldo Mapa replaced Maj. Gen. Leo Rigan, who won the military's military retirement age of 60, instead of the 55-year-old NCRCom's then at AFP headquarters, Camp Aguinaldo, Quezon City.

In his speech, AFP Chief of Staff Gen. Victor Bernaldo commended Mapa for his leadership of military school and noted operations last month when Metro Manila went under water in the wake of Tropical Storm "Giselle" and "Peggy."

General Bernaldo's commendation was very timely in connection to Metro's role in the command in carrying the country's premier region," said Bernaldo said of his appointment in PMA-Class 1978.

Bernaldo directed the commanding officers to actively engage the troops to enhance activities in the metropolitan, especially in disaster preparedness campaigns of the government.

"We can value more natural calamities in the metropolitan and this is a great opportunity for us to bring in Metro Manila to share their insights," Bernaldo said.

Before his appointment, Mapa headed the Philippine Army's 18th Infantry Division in Southern Mindanao.

Mapa belongs to the PMA class that also adopted President Arroyo as its mentor.

made on Dec. 21 or 22, 2012, the so-called ancient Mayan calendar prophecy.

It is not a doomsday scenario but a new beginning in humanity's consciousness, explained Sri Sri, adding what the modern-day Mayan scribe, Francisco Chan Chan, has been saying since the prophecy.

"During this time, the planet and its inhabitants may undergo a positive physical or spiritual transformation, and 2012 may mark the beginning of a new era," said Sri Sri, who noted Indian mystic, called Sri Sri, is convincing the Indians by his mystic.

"We are going to see a new consciousness developing, that of humanism," he told a small crowd of people that he met before the public talk.

Unfounded fears

Unfounded media reports in foreign lands stirred similar unfounded fears.

"Remember 1990, fearing the human transformation prediction? The second millennium came and the world is still existing."

"Remember the fall of communism? It took another 20 years to bring capitalism to collapse."

"Being me live in a culture of caution and uncertainty of the times where leaders can no longer be trusted. We live in a time where one's neighbor and brother can be turned on overnight," he said.

In exposed people to seek inner peace in the midst of a dynamic changing world. "To develop new attitudes and new ways of coping with the difficulties and hardships we are facing such as climate, epidemic and flooding."

Ignorance creates problems

Facing the ignorance creates problems, Sri Sri Sri to clarify. He countries every year, traveling to his role of "educating people, removing prejudice, teaching compassion."

He Sri Sri a Hindu Peace Prize winner in 2008, is recognized for his work in promoting and conflict resolution in such areas as Iraq, Kashmir, Sri Lanka and Cameroon.

Before coming to Manila for his second visit, he was in Bangkok, Thailand, to speak at a human conference about the need to eliminate a major social disease—drugs—infected by the growing incidence of violence and drug abuse.

He said he was visiting Manila to see for himself the human relief efforts of Lady Philippine volunteers on the victims of the recent twin calamities of "Ondoy" and "Peping."

Trauma relief

Last Feb, volunteers have started up with the Red Cross in providing not only food but also a trauma relief workshop, called the Breath, Share, Heal program, for thousands of people in the evacuation centers. The course creates of breathing exercises and sound meditations with lot of talking about the difficulties to help manage stress.

Volunteer Theodor Crick on his visit said the course for 12 seven children for the Calabugan street children had passed at the Mission Point, the remark that the children don't have the judgemental in school that too much education can cause stress.

"They are open and accepting and treat everything as fun and games," he said.

During the course, the ones to have finished, the kids ranging in age from 7 to 13, have breathing exercises and meditation in addition to regular schoolwork. The course is a trauma relief for the Calabugan street children. They are taught how to deal with the wind and feel safe within themselves.

The children were presented to Sri Sri during his public talk. The stress relief program has been a success in trauma relief and transformation, particularly in stress-management and attitude.

Major social disease

Sri Sri said the disease is major social disease. "Conflict and stress are the two main diseases," he said.

His approach places immediate development and social uplift side by side with self-actualization.

Through programs that help people find themselves in times and inspire them to see the bigger meaning of life, Sri Sri has been successful in making violence aggressive culture, happy and less prone to destruction everywhere.

People who came to listen to his public talk, called "Let Love Win," did not have a lot of words being said but were treated to about two hours of de-stressing music and peaceful affirmations.

It was long enough for Sri Sri to make his point. Why worry about 2012?

Always feel safe

Always BE SAFE FROM WATERBORNE DISEASES

Waterborne diseases are still a serious threat in our country, especially during this season of rains and floods.

These diseases can be caused by pathogenic microorganisms which are directly transmitted when contaminated drinking water is consumed. According to the World Health Organization, waterborne diseases are responsible for the deaths of 1.8 million people every year - with diarrhea the leading cause of childhood deaths.

Diarrhea is a form of bacterial infection. Other bacterial diseases are cholera, dysentery, and typhoid.

Other forms of disease that can be transmitted through water are poliovirus, viral hepatitis, paratuberculosis, parasitic infections like cryptosporidiosis and viral infections like hepatitis A.

One of the most effective ways to avoid waterborne diseases is to be careful about the quality of your drinking water. This should always be stored in a cool (6-15 degrees), dark (away from sunlight and dry (avoid humidity) place. It should be kept away from substances like chemicals, detergents and the like.

Of course, you should make sure your water is safe for drinking. One of the safest forms of water is distilled water like Wilkins.

Wilkins Distilled Drinking Water follows a set of high quality standards (certified since 1992). Wilkins goes through a 11-step-of-five (11-5) purification and disinfection process in an enclosed environment to ensure that the water comes back in its original form - H₂O. That means Wilkins has no dissolved solids, chemical impurities, microorganisms and other harmful bacteria, untouched by foreign tanks. It is then packed into purified bottles that are automatically sealed to prevent any contamination.

With Wilkins Distilled Drinking Water, you and your kids can always stay free from waterborne diseases.

It all started early last year, when my sister-in-law Rita Prieto asked, if I could help produce a gala show for Dennis, who has been in the fashion industry for years. I didn't want to work alone, so Dennis linked me up with Tanya's dramatic friend

THE COLLEGE with David Rosenberg

Love story that began at summer camp

WEDNESDAY, October 10, 1990 Finally with Kim Maffucci, he was just 17 years old. They were both at smoking a cigarette camp by a creek and didn't talk to each other until the last day. Once they were joined, the love became instant. And, even today in college, because a couple after 6 years of dating, Henry proposed to Kim, and she said "I do."

Henry Silvio B. Olinas and Maria Teresa Ramirez-Q. Villaverde were united in marriage on Dec. 21, 2008 at Sanatorio de San Antonio, Pánuco, Tlax., with Fr. Ed Barrera officiating. The groom is the son of deceased Enrique Olinas.

WEDDING preparations

ATTENDED friends in Europe—Karin Parthen and Anna Catling

Begins. Karen Beggs-Agnew, my good friend from Ireland, and Christine Lutz, a young lawyer and piano enthusiast from Paris, formed a "good country" that made sure all happy feelings were filled throughout the day.

Since the French ceremony did not include the venue decorations, we all helped set up the place. It day before the wedding, with the groom, Sam's cousin and male friends as guests at the courtyard reception. Then with Philippe's friends' dinner, among women and tall lanterns from Sam's Mom and incorporated in the table setting and menu.

These last few nights before the wedding, we shared the most laughter (I never had a whole).

The banquet for July 2 was incredible, and ARMED Beggs-Agnew (standing), Anna Catling and Christine

from last time almost every other room. Tomorrow is day 10 and the day I thought we all spent too hard because it turned out to be one of the best days of the year in Belgium. It felt like being back home in Manila—without the humidity.

Most relaxed

On the day of the wedding, Sam was probably the most relaxed person in the wedding. I was ready with my wedding gown and last minute's dress—single soft last one with glitters (even accompanied with pins, apron and shoes, too pink). The more of her wedding, I was working on her behalf.

Sam's "wondering how much" came from the fact, who had said that her wedding party from Geneva, Sam was also lucky she had her sister, photographer, the Vignette, who also happened to own the Blue Photo Studio with Louis (husband, at 57 building at the Fall. We also had my sister (Sister) to create a video on the day.

We all attended the official ceremony at the city hall, Geneva (Geneva and Sam and I were to bring in around. And the day of Sam's last time again had no where to go and what to do.

In this age, when we change, we found myself smiling from down the door step. The day, that, passed as a few steps before the world part, which was him giving Sam away to Sam.

We proceeded to the Mass (wedding ceremony) in the morning. During the ceremony, I was seated in the front row, as I had just arrived in the courtyard. We all left just after the ceremony (which I looked like a sister party with white wine and champagne on a sunny hot sunny day).

Great times

French chef Pierre (Hugues), the most likely to have eaten, arrived as a great French menu. My (Sister) was Christine de, Antoine de Bourgogne and Yvonne de Agnew. After the buffet, we gave out small speeches, but I thought, I was just the most memorable and memorable speech—meaningful, very touching. Sam who had up to work the last part! All the kids present!

The party's finale was the dancing, on the steps of the courtyard foot, the other more drinks, who cared about the public on the ground.

In the end of the party the "French are French" song and relatives worked in being down the road and dancing to the song. We also had the lighting on how we could enjoy the evening. We never did the best home where we really want and pay for more planners for any size of party. When made this most memorable was our later of love in Sam's wedding. The time we took to decorate and make things beautiful together, that's what counted.

Hello, Sam! I love you! I love you! I love you!

SM MALL OF ASIA

FUN KIDDIE DESTINATION LIKE NO OTHER

Libera gets a taste of fun at SM Mall of Asia's Selecta Kids Universe

Libera, the world-renowned boys' choir from the United Kingdom and had certified choir-soppers in Europe, the United States, and Asia, was in the Philippines last October for a concert tour. The performances of this music phenomenon were warmly welcomed and applauded by audiences in Manila and Cebu, who got their first taste of live Libera music. After an exhausting tour of the major concert venues in the Philippines, the boys went to SM Mall of Asia for a well-deserved rest and recreation break.

The Libera boys found Selecta Kids Universe, the latest kiddie destination at SM Mall of Asia, an exciting place to let loose and unwind. They had a great time exploring the space-themed Cosmic Kids Gym and its exciting play features like the Gamma Cannon, the Plasma Post, and the Hypercicle. The boys also partook of a mind-blowing time at The Observatory, where they were served appetizing dishes and delectable desserts. They also had a tour of the whole facility, they took out the different attractions like the X-Rider 4D Theater and shopped at ASTROKIDZ where they had so much fun shopping for videos and games.

These little singers surely had a great time visiting one of the largest malls in the world and the country's top lifestyle destination, MOA. Along with the lovely memories of their visit to the Philippines, they're sure to remember with a smile on their faces the great time they had at MOA! Bring the kids over now to MOA and let them experience the wonders of Selecta Kids Universe, where kids rule!

A Halloween Nicks-perience like no other at SM Mall of Asia

Kids were treated to an exciting Halloween experience by Nickelodeon at the SM Mall of Asia last October 31. It was truly a Nick "scare- liberation" as children dressed in their Halloween best flocked to the MOA Music Mall for a day of frightening fun. The ones who bravely entered The CS-Nick, a haunted clinic set up on the mall premises, had an unforgettable experience within the doomsday facility's halls. The kids had fun while discovering the horrors that lurk in the corner and searching for the exit to survive The CS-Nick!

Exciting prizes were also given to the children who eagerly participated in the games prepared by Nickelodeon. As an added treat, kids were treated with an awesome insight show to wrap up Shocktober 2009 at SM Mall of Asia.

Events and recreation held in the country's top destination mall built for the young buy are bound to be memorable and excitingly fun. With its nearly a thousand retail stores and establishments, and unique seasonal events, it's no wonder why no other mall comes close to SM Mall of Asia!

How Vicky Zubiri battles her pain

She describes it as 'like someone ramming a rock against my eye'

LANE Canvas, Italy

By Conchita Sella Bernardo
Columnist

BEHIND THAT GLAMOUR, slim, trim figure, impeccable grooming and pouty-lip is the true and admirable Vicky Zubiri. The façade belies the person. However, I would like to show how the façade is testimony to the courageous fighting spirit that has started for Vicky the label "The Warrior" among her closest friends. (Vicky is wife to former Robinsons Golf and Country Club member and mother to Sen. Miguel Zubiri.)

It is understood that we go back to the past. We were classmates, all 62 of us, Anconia High School 1965, and 57 for College 1966. We still have contacts our golden jubilee.

It was in a class gathering that Vicky brought some paintings. She loved them. She offered to value them for a relative school badly damaged by floods in the Malibu area in 1994, and for the Museum of Art of Yonkers, by giving a percentage of proceeds from a planned exhibit.

The spike of a need to channel an intense physical and debilitating pain toward something creative. A pain that radiates from the back of her brain to her optic nerve, because of a swelling tumor that causes her constant nausea and vomiting. She wears her trademark, round glasses. We thought it was a glamour statement, instead she wears that it shields and hides an eye reddened by surgical operations and blood tears resulting from the leveling tumor.

She describes her pain "like someone ramming a rock against my eye." When her glasses are removed, Vicky's one eye barely coordinates with the other eye. Instead, it falls inward her nasal bridge. "When I wake up in the mornings and I look at myself, with my eyes like this and the pain so intense, I tell myself to fight back."

In the year her eyes swell, goes to her "that feeling that and problem a bug, visualizing the device that gave her that week was in the eye by cutting her deep and damaging her optic nerve. Then the tumor and pain together with delirium came the day we are in hospitals, emergency and parties. She finally complains, nervously looking each day as it comes, with a spiritual challenge.

Creativity

Now she paints with creativity only one eye that function normally. In this page are samples of her creativity and her spiritual art. She can be in the "Tuscan Valley one day, the South of France the next, even on a safari in Africa. She has just concluded a trip to Beijing, invited by the University of New York, with her scholarship, arranged by her professor from Ateneo. There, she learned and tested techniques of Chinese brush painting.

She was only 16 years, and her paintings are evidence of a kind, sophisticated and that chosen to see the flower and the sea despite extended illness.

The exhibit is on Nov. 12, 1:30 p.m. at Peninsula Manila, Hotel & Casino, the showcase of champagne, will be present to meet Vicky's latest show experience on canvas.

Modern Minimalist architecture

The 33-story building's modern minimalist design is characterized by clean, uncluttered lines. The architect's such efforts inspire a tranquil ambience, providing homeowners a much-needed distance from the demands of daily routine. Illumina Residences' architecture also inspires the use of available lighting, which can lead to less artificial light use and, therefore, less electricity expenses. The number of windows gives residents plenty of opportunities to experience the cool breeze.

When viewing the top of the building, one can notice its distinct T-shape. The property's nearly 5,000 square-meter pool was meticulously built having been surrounded. The property's design allowed the property's convenience, giving more time to use it or to be around.

NEED SOMETHING TO DO WHILE REVILLAME? I've observed that the people I know who dislike him have never met him, while those who are fond of him and love him have had the opportunity to know him intimately.

Last Saturday, late in the afternoon, I got a call from Robert Castaneda, a dear friend, asking if I wanted to join him over the long All Stars Day weekend in Subic. My original plan was to stay in Manila and have fun, but I was so excited to visit him that I decided to go.

I immediately changed my earlier plan for the weekend. First, it dawned on me that this would be a great and lovely time to enjoy the weekend and spending in the

Taga-Ilog Manifesto

I am a Taga-Ilog.

My ancestors used to live along the river banks and they regarded the river as their life. Their deep connection with the river runs in my blood.

We are essentially water people.

We live in an archipelago where one tribe is connected with the other by the water that flows through each lake and river. Water permeates within our consciousness, our identity, our culture and history. But this connection and reverence faded somewhere in time past and then, started the decay of the once-united river of life - the Taga-Ilog.

I stand here today to revive this lost connection with the river. With it comes my commitment to be my part in cleaning the Taga-Ilog and in the process, for the river of water flow once again in its pure form.

As a Taga-Ilog, I am accountable to help spread and raise environmental awareness, properly manage my waste, monitor and report incidents that pollute the river, educate and support all activities conducted for the benefit of the river, and influence others to do the same.

You and me, we are Taga-Ilog.

One drop of commitment will create ripples of change.

We will cherish the Taga-Ilog and the rest of our river system will follow.

With that, we can inspire in the next generation the gift of hope, the gift of will, and the gift of limitless possibilities.

We are Taga-Ilog.

Let us claim our heritage.

Let us claim our future.

Beet Jugo helped install water-saving devices during the grand opening of Baguio Plaza in Cebu.

BERT JUGO was instrumental in forging the partnership between the Habitat for Humanity Philippines and the Taga-Ilog group so (log) Pong (ORPFI). Under his helm as its President and CEO, the Habitat for Humanity generously supported ORPFI's official rebranding into Baguio Plaza in Cebu. Habitat for Humanity supervised the construction of 800 houses, coordinated the installation and the energy, and will provide the supervision of the first 300 Habitat houses.

We at ORPFI are deeply saddened by the passing of Bert Jugo at the age of 65. However, we are comforted by the wonderful legacy that he has left behind for the rehabilitation of the Taga-Ilog.

LIFESTYLE OF WOMEN BEHIND PRESIDENTIAL ASPIRANTS—First in a series

Style tips for wives, daughters and girlfriends

By Flores Ramos Diaz
Contributor

AS DESIGNER, I WOULD encourage every woman to wear clothes they are comfortable in without compromising their image and style. For wives and daughters of presidential aspirants, it is not so much about adhering to a specific look, as knowing one's parameters.

The image of these women, especially if negative, will surely have an impact on public perception of the candidate. Hence, we tend to associate image with values, and family members typically share a value system.

Modesty is not necessarily a bad thing, and likewise is a bad, boring look. But if men want to see fashion in so public places, we must, they can work with a leading expert to produce a look that can help connect with people.

"Inoffensive" might have a negative connotation, but sometimes we also work based on what we can look up to, admire and learn from. The first lady or first daughter—as long as they are not vulgar in displaying wealth and status, as this could be quite offensive and insensitive to an impoverished country.

I have not made clothes for them, but I know Camille Villar. She goes for an understated classic look. I think Rep. Cynthia Villar's style is also classic, but I haven't seen much of her in the media so I am not that familiar with her style.

If I were to do their wardrobe for the campaign, I would use what would attract attention and it would help people have a visual recall of Cynthia. I would probably recommend subtle variations—prints—nothing flamboyant...like embroidered pins or bows, notes inspired by the traditional hanging.

Camille has a classic contemporary sensibility in fashion. She is sketched in the lower in terms of trends. I think that Camille also has a healthy appreciation for designer items such as bags, shoes, dresses to appear modern and sophisticated. She wants to have a look for pulling together a look that is both safe yet elegant.

I would recommend that she wear pieces that are fashion-forward and

Low-key style for high-grade presidential campaign

Cynthia Villar and daughter Camille opt for no-fuss fashion

By Alan T. Vergara

WHILE ACCOMPLISHED and highly visible, Rep. Cynthia Villar of Los Baños is a fashion designer's dream client. The same can be said of her only daughter Camille, the Asenso-affiliated head of corporate communications of family-owned Vista Laredo.

But as Nida Hana, Cynthia's second cousin and the family's longtime designer, reveals, dressing up both women could challenge any designer's creativity for totally different reasons.

Just when she thought the campaign season looked to heat up, with Sen. Manuel Villar, Cynthia husband and Camille's father, only weeks away from filing his candidacy for the presidency, Hana thinks the two women aren't likely to do any dress redesigns just to win votes.

"She's a very simple and practical person, who usually buys her casual and business clothes off the rack," Hana says of Cynthia. "Her gown is not too formal gown, which would mostly of Filipinos inspired pieces."

For when the occasion calls for a gown, Cynthia is usually in a contemporary dress and a necklace or brooch piece.

UNITED NEWS

CAMILLE and Cynthia Villar both prefer simple, no-nonsense pieces that don't call attention to themselves. Camille laughs her off when she is in the U.S. while Cynthia gets her new piece of rose ensemble from a trip to Vietnam.

OLD DESIGNERS NEVER die. They are simply "resurrected" by Alan Pineda for his "Fashion for a Cause" every time there is a national calamity. This year, it's the flood victims of Ondoy, Pepeng, Aklan and Tawi who were the beneficiaries. This legendary fundraising event was last staged when Mr. Pineda was just a decade old.

Some 174 fashion designers rapidly closed ranks last Wednesday night at the PGC (Piney Hill) and put their own gown forward without ego or vested emotions. It was an evening of camaraderie, building one with real conversation on how the floods would devastate their shops and homes.

It was also a marvelous mosaic of some of the best fashion talent in varying age groups. Some superstars like Louie Clapardo in retro style reminded Christian Lacroix, who generously bought the white gown of Tami Sanchez for his wife Gini.

There were Pineda's old friends with Elton Roca and Gerry Bagalao, sharp fashion and being for two people, a male gown, while assistant of the Young Designers of the Philippines showed white medical dresses. Choreographer Joy Tapia, Jhille Carmona and Jackie Aquino ran together, laughing on their head, while makeup artist Patrick Bener and Eric Montano lent their fabulous creative passion.

Young designers' hustle

I was seated with National Order for Fashion Design, Maryanne, who excelled at the young, up-and-coming designers' ability to come up with solutions, even the top talents.

These worthy showed the morale of our members to display every trick of the trade, such as beaded, ruffled, draped, beaded, water-like ruffled and beaded, and. This talking to with famous ladies and resources is how our young designers may copy others in Paris or become made of creative talent in the Middle East.

This industry with even government support is alive and thriving in the arena with dynamic, innovative talent. In this spirit are what the designers' press and designers applaud, as the Top 100 Best Fashion and Top 100 Best Costume for New Year's Eve.
